PILOBOLUS & MARK MORRIS:
Dancing On The Grave Of Gay Civil Rights

Last November, the state of Colorado passed an anti-gay law called Amendment 2. Amendment 2 strips gays in Colorado of all civil rights protection, and specifically allows anti-gay and anti-lesbian discrimination. This means that in Colorado, gays and lesbians can be fired from their jobs--can be denied housing--can even be denied seating in restaurants and service in stores--and Colorado state law approves. Similar laws are pending in 11 other states across the country.

These two prominent dance companies are ignoring the boycott and performing in Colorado this month. They're enriching the cultural life of a state that codified anti-gay and lesbian discrimination. It isn't enough to wag one's finger at a cocktail party, or cluck disapprovingly. It's time to take a stand. Phone and fax them today and encourage your friends to do the same. And tell them you won't be buying future tickets to their New York shows unless they stay out of the Hate State!
